New: gift cards & barcodes

This year, Lakeside is excited to introduce Gift Cards as a way to pay for Daily, Weekly or Seasonal Chautauqua Passes. As a way to accommodate the expectations of our guests, Lakeside is planning to gradually phase out the Coupon Books as a way to purchase certain Chautauqua Passes instead.

This year, your Daily Chautauqua Pass holders will still be able to purchase Coupon Books. As always, each coupon may be exchanged for one Daily Chautauqua Pass ticket or used toward payment of the Chautauqua Passes. However, these barcodes will have no immediate effect on our guests. Passes will still need to be shown upon entering the gates, Hoover Auditorium and the Grindley Aquatic & Wellness Campus and other Chautauqua programs.

In the summer of 2018, guests will be able to purchase barcodes on their Daily, Weekly or Season Chautauqua Passes. However, these barcodes will have no immediate effect on our guests. Passes will still need to be shown upon entering the gates, Hoover Auditorium and the Grindley Aquatic & Wellness Campus, but the barcodes will not be scanned this year. Lakeside will be internally testing this year with the plan of implementing the barcode system in 2019.

The purpose of testing the barcodes is that Lakeside believes the barcodes have a better idea of features which can be used for the next year. For example, Lakeside has noted the possibilities of offering convenience features to frequent and seasonal guests such as mobile ticketing. Thank you all of our guests and residents for your patience and cooperation as we take steps to better serve and meet our guests’ expectations moving forward.

The device will then be able to detect and encode the signal from a hearing loop system. The encoded signal will be transmitted to a receiver, which, in turn, will be converted back to electrical signals and sent to the user’s hearing aid or cochlear implant. To use the hearing loop system, you will need to have a device with a t-coil. There are a variety of devices that will work with the hearing loop system, including telephones, hearing aids and cochlear implants. As I grew older, I felt God put the desire in my heart to pursue my faith wherever I go. It would be an opportunity to discern what God wanted for me. The next morning I started to become frustrated.

I realized this is where God wanted me. It was a great reminder that His plan is bigger than ours. I am thankful for the opportunities I have had and I am looking forward to the rest of the summer.

The finite world touches the infinite. Psyche is more about the journey than the destination. We hope to continue to grow the program – tweaking and evolving to meet the needs of the community."

"If the program continues to grow into a two-day event, we will do that," said Wirth. "We would never want to exclude anyone," saidDon. "We're going to serve everyone that we can."

Friday, Aug. 17

Lakesiders welcomes the return of Chipper Lowell in “The Chipper Experience! Where Comedy & Magic Collide” as part of our new Family Entertainment Series. These special shows, held on select Wednesdays throughout the summer, are geared especially toward families and begin at 7:30 p.m.

Lowell, an award-winning comedian and magician, has been described as an “artistic cyclone of talent and comedy.” He’s known for doling out witty remarks, presenting bizarre feats of original magic, ad-hoc with audience members and creating shows of high-energy laughs and amusement.

For more than 20 years, Lowell has been bringing his unique brand of infectious mayhem to audiences across the U.S., Canada, Mexico, England, Australia, New Zealand and Malaysia.

As a boy, Lowell was born and raised on traveling circuses with his show business parents.

His father was a professional clown and ring master with the Ringling Bros., and his mother performed as a surrealistic working high above the crowds.

By age 17, he was the star of his own shows, pandering many of the variety acts he grew up with, while also creating eye-popping magic routines.

His improve training came from the critically-acclaimed Groundlings Theatre in Los Angeles – the popular improv troupe that birthed such names as “Saturday Night Live” alumni.

In time, he returned to his mystical and theatrical roots and headlining in casinos towns. Along the way, he has received accolades, including CMA Magician of the Year, Specialty Act of the Year, Stage Magician of the Year, and was twice listed among the Top Ten Magicians Performing Today by MAGIC Magazine.

Lowell has made special appearances on “The Tonight Show,” “General Hospital” and “America’s Funniest People,” and has shared the stage with Jerry Seinfeld, Dana Carvey, Mark Steelman, Dev-idel and Michael Bolton. He performs at specialty charity and fundraising events each year, with special focus on Autism awareness and the development of learning support to families dealing with autism. In 2015, he was asked to speak about his experience of raising a child who was diagnosed with high-functioning autism at age 3.

Critically-acclaimed vocalist Helen Welch will present “Superstar,” a show celebrating the music of The Carpenters.

The Carpenters, the brother and sister duo of Karen and Richard Carpenter, were popular in the 1970s and 1980s. Some of their hits include, “Long to be Close to You,” “We’re Only Just Begun,” “Rainy Days and Mondays” and many more.

Welch, a native of England, is known for her musical theatre roles. She is described as having the voice of Elton Fitzgerald and the warm alto tones of Karen Carpenter combined with soul and a cheeky British sense of humor.

Since her early days, Welch has headlined with the BBC Big Band, Glenn Miller Ensemble and Opus One, as well as at the UK’s most prestigious venues: The Ritz, The Savoy and Blenheim Palace. Additionally, she has starred roles in West End musicals, such as Willy Donnelly’s “Hello Dolly,” Barlow, Caruso, 42nd Street, Calamity Jane and Urinetown.

After a very successful run in the UK, Welch relocated to the U.S. to guest star in the Broadway musical Smash.

Her immediate success landed her as a fronting vocalist for the Cleveland Orchestra, Greensboro Symphony Orchestra and the Assistant Conductor of the Pasadena Symphony.

Kiesling’s previous positions include Resident Conductor of the Symphony Orchestra of the Americas and the Assistant Director of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Currently, he conducts the University Orchestra and Opera at the University of California Santa Cruz.

Kiesling holds graduate degrees from the University of Michigan, the University of Miami and the University of North Carolina School of the Arts.

He performed at several charity and fundraising events each year, with special focus on Autism awareness and the development of learning support to families dealing with autism. In 2015, he was asked to speak about his experience of raising a child who was diagnosed with high-functioning autism at age 3.

10 a.m., Tuesday: Judaism, Christianity, and Muslims: Historical Models, Experiences, and Reflections with Rev. Dr. Deanna Ferree Womack

There is much to learn from history about the ways that Christians, Jews, and Muslims are connected to one another. This lecture gives attention to historical models of Jewish-Christian-Muslim relations since the 1960’s, demonstrating Islam’s deep roots in America. An understanding of this past will help us with the current discussions. This lecture will address the following questions: How have Christian discussions about Islam been influenced by the Middle East, where religious pluralism has long been a way of life? Why have religious traditions of Jewish-Christian-Muslim or Jewish-Muslim tensions in the region, positive and negative? How do we think about the lessons from history to present-day efforts for interreligious peacebuilding?

10 a.m., Wednesday: Islam in America: Learning from the Past, Present, and Future with Rev. Dr. Deanna Ferree Womack

This lecture takes a fresh turn and presents Islam as a possibility for pursuing interreligious peace and justice. This lecture invites participants to reflect upon roles in their home contexts to promote religious literacy, foster understanding of various traditions, and cultivate positive relations between people of different faiths. Imagine what life together should look like in the multi-faith society of twenty-first century America and consider the sort of tools and dispositions needed to make that vision a reality. Among new strategies and principles for dialogue, learn how to play games for peace.

Assistant Listening Technology

Chautauqua Hall and Lakeside that are now equipped with hearing loops. These systems allow individuals to receive clear sound from the sound system directly to their hearing aid or cochlear implant. This technology eliminates most of the reverbation and background noise that can make it difficult to hear conversations. The loop will also eliminate the need for the hearing loop system, the telecoil (also known as a t-coil) in the hearing aid will need to be turned on. Most hearing aids have a hearing loop button located on them. If your hearing aid is a digital hearing aid, it can be turned on or off in the control settings. If your hearing aid is a traditional analog hearing aid with a telecoil setting, the telecoil can be turned on or off in the hearing aid. The telecoil on hearing aids can be turned on or off to use the hearing aid, but need assistance with hearing, a headset plugged into a loop receiver is available for those who need assistance. Contact the Lakeside Education Department at education@lakesideohio.com for more information about hearing loop technology.

Financial Summary

Financing Lakeside: What will the funding model look like in the future?

Kurt Geisher
Lakeside Chautauqua Board Treasurer

Last week, we looked at the value Lakesiders receive when compared to other organizations, and how Lakeside fits within the Chautauqua communities. The data showed that by any comparison, Lakeside is a clear value. We should all be proud of what our forerunners built and what we have improved and expanded upon. The same is true for any other business (remember from the first week: Lakeside is also a business) our focus must remain squarely on the future. We review this document annually and hope for the community and the Chautauqua program.

Lakeside's primary funding sources and expenses as well as benchmarking to regional destinations and Chautauquas are two vital exercises as we plan for the future of Lakeside.

The key to moving forward, especially in light of our community's needs, is to model the financial summary.

A recent article, "Ten Nonprofit Funding Models" by William Landis Foster, Peter Row, has been posted in the Stanford Social Innovation Review points out a familiar topic to most nonprofits - money and funding.

This article states: "Money is a constant topic of conversation among nonprofit leaders. How do we get it? Where can we find it? Why isn’t there more of it? In tough economies, these type of questions become even more frequent and pressing. Unfortunately, the answers are not readily available. Thus, because nonprofits are much more sophisticated about creating programs than they are about funding their organizations, and philanthropists often struggle to understand the impact (and limitations) of their donations.

These are familiar questions and discussions Lakeside has had.

In a for-profit business, the business generally identifies a set of principles that define a business model. Examples are "low-cost provider" and "fast follower." When a business sells "razors and razor blades," it is understood that the business model is to sell hardware – like razor handles – cheaply or at a loss in order to generate revenue and profit from razor blades.

"The value of such shorthand is that it allows business leaders to articulate quickly and clearly how they will succeed in the marketplace and allow investors to quiz executives more easily about how they intend to make money. This back-and-forth increases the odds that businesses will succeed, investors will make money, and everyone will learn more from their experiences," adds Foster, Kim and Christiansen in the article.

The draft of the Master Plan, which has been circulating among Lakesiders, has identified concepts and high-level projects totaling more than $55 million dollars. Most Lakesiders understand that the Master Plan is a high-level, visionary document that will guide decision-making and be a living and flexible document for years to come. This means that it won’t be a static plan and that priorities and needs will change over time as the community continues to grow. It also means that some identified projects won’t be completed or will be significantly altered as they are completed.

The Master Plan and the entire planning process over the last year has also caused the board, the Finance Committee and Lakeside’s senior staff to understand that we must deliberately develop a funding model that will sustain Lakeside into the next 20-year period. Initial discussions have begun and a framework and list of imperatives is beginning to take shape. Some of the concepts that have emerged include the following:

1. We must distinguish projects between those that are candidates for partnerships with support organizations and those that are not a candidate for philanthropic support, and those that are infrastructure-related and those that are likely to be supported by philanthropy.

2. We must weigh funding decisions carefully and try to maintain the collaborative funding balance between donors, homeowners, guests and other constituents.

3. We must work harder to link specific revenues to specific expenses. We currently have many “businesses.” Examples are the realty business, cottage rental business, hotel business, entertainment business, etc. It will become more important in the future that we understand and measure each one’s contribution to our funding and our costs.

4. Future consideration must be given to identifying businesses and activities that are not “core” to our mission and the four Chautauqua pillars. Examples include operating restaurants, renting and operating retail space, bed & breakfasts and other housing. Currently in Lakeside, these activities are managed and produced by third parties who are more skilled at operating these types of businesses. There may be opportunities to partner with similar businesses and to operate these types of businesses more efficiently.

5. Future consideration must be given to our funding and our costs.

6. We must work to broaden our base of supporters and identify sources of grant funding. Examples of this are grants from corporations, foundations, and governmental organizations that support the arts, historic buildings, education lecturers and more.

7. We must develop a plan to cultivate partnerships with other organizations that are external to our field and already produce quality programs. Examples are universities, theatre companies, schools of music and theatre arts, recreation and sports medicine programs, etc.

8. We must evolve our planning and budgeting process to have a more long-term point of view. An example is our planning for the long-term operating costs of major new facilities. We used this approach when planning for the Grindley Aquatic & Wellness Campus in our 2017-2018 and 2018-2019 budgets and have been monitoring actual costs as they occur.

The Finance Committee of the board is moving to become as visionary with our decision-making and funding model as the community has been in establishing its vision with the Master Plan. We have a lot to accomplish over the next several years as we begin to implement the Master Plan and work toward Lakeside’s 150th anniversary in 2023. We appreciate and encourage your feedback and are always here to listen.

Several years of audited financials, accompanied by the auditor’s report to the board, are available at www.lakesideohio.com/financials. Additional questions or comments may be addressed to any of the members of the 2018-19 Finance Committee.

1. We must distinguish projects between those that are likely to be supported by philanthropy, those that are infrastructure-related and not a candidate for philanthropic support, and those that are candidates for partnerships with investors and can produce income, without Lakeside funding.

2. We must remain opportunistic and consider, in light of the overall plan, moving priorities for specific projects upward if funding presents itself.

3. We must weigh funding decisions carefully and try to maintain the collaborative funding balance between donors, homeowners, guests and other constituents.

Fine Arts & Crafts for all Lakesiders

Lakeside Chautauqua houses a treasure in Epstein Park, located at the corner of Walnut Avenue and Sixth Street, known as the C. Kirk Rhein, Jr. Center for the Living Arts. Arts programming began there on Aug. 8, 1999, thanks to a generous gift from the Rhein family, and their friends, in memory of their art, Kirk.

The Rhein Center provides classes across the entire range of the arts for Lakesiders young and old and everything in between. Each week brings a new group of instructors and a new variety of class offerings in areas such as drawing, painting, crafts, ceramics, dance, fiber arts, glass, jewelry, theatre, writing, and more.

Classes vary in skill level, length and number of sessions. Classes in the arts will continue to open at 8 a.m. on the Thursday before each week of classes, and the new Saturday classes are available for registration anytime throughout the summer.
